

Can the Decline of Western Civilization be Reversed?

By Bob Warren

Over the past decade or so, the leaders of the supposedly civilized countries of Western Europe have encouraged the invasion of their countries by aliens, mainly from the Islamic and tribal African worlds. This invasion was ostensibly for the purpose of reversing national population decline. Unfortunately, the experiment is having severe consequences. In far too many cases, the consequences fall on the children.

Recently, in the United Kingdom, stories of Pakistani rape gangs of children have been reported. These are not small numbers, as thousands of girls and boys as young as 8 years old have been subject to sexual assault. UK girls are particularly vulnerable. They fear going out to play or walking alone to school. The following recent example applies.

Two young Scottish sisters, 12 and 14 years of age, were walking home. They were being harassed by migrant men. At one point, the 12 year old brandished a knife and a hatchet to warn them off. She has good reason to fear that the men intended to rape her and her sister. (What is startling is that this frightened 12-year-old girl felt that she had to defend herself because nobody else would. Not law enforcement. Not her community. Not even her parents.)

The video of the incident has already been seen by at least 50 million people on Elon Musk's X.com. But then the story gets really absurd. The 12 year old was arrested for brandishing a bladed weapon. Apparently, throughout the United Kingdom, you can only defend yourself with a loud whistle. (Again, what is startling is that this is a 12-year-old girl.) By the way, the harassing migrants were simply let go.

This was so outrageous that the word spread not only in Scotland, but throughout the United Kingdom and the World. It brings the reality of what is happening to children into every civilized native's home. (The young girl's name is apparently Mayah Sommers and she is now being called the "return of Boudica, the warrior queen" or the New Queen of Scotland. This is a huge embarrassment to the political class, but more significantly, a real threat to spark rebellion.

Further, throughout England, native citizens have begun flying, painting or otherwise displaying the “Cross of St George” flag everywhere – on lamp posts, crosswalks, roundabouts, fences, benches, walls, etc. The Cross of St George is a flag with a red cross on a white background. It is the national flag of England. Within the past week, the blue and white x-cross flag of Scotland has begun to spring up everywhere. Irish and Welsh flags aren’t likely to be far behind. The political class of the UK is threatening to stamp out these displays. They rightfully perceive the flag flying as a rebellion against the politics that have favored alien invasion.

The bottom line is that the politicians have destroyed a relatively benign UK and turned it into a growing war zone. (Notably, the crime statistics are horrendous. It is not unusual to see murder and rape statistics that have exploded by 10 to 20 times or more since the alien invasion.)

At this point, Western civilized Europe is a powder keg with a lit match being flung about. Mayah and her sister constitute a potentially pivotal event. Is this an Arch-Duke Ferdinand moment or just another in a string of anti-children incidents caused by alien invaders? Time is short and telling.

Note: This article focuses on the children, but the situation is actually much worse when you consider the police have deliberately taken sides to, at a minimum, suppress freedom of speech. Recently, a teenager at an anti-invasion protest said, “I like bacon”. He was arrested by the police.