Co-host of “The Young Turks” Ana Kasparian reportedly slammed Democrats for continuing to support Democratic California Governor Gavin Newsom as a potential presidential candidate in spite of his terrible record of failure in his home state.

Kasparian stated that under Newsom’s leadership, California has degenerated into a “sh*tshow” and criticized the Democratic Party for supporting figures who continue to fail.

During Newsom’s tenure as California’s governor, homelessness and crime have increased in the state’s main cities.

Once a prestigious metropolis, San Francisco now has more than 7,700 homeless residents.

According to reports, residents have complained about the nuisances caused by the city’s large homeless population, including defecation, harassment, open-air drug use, frequent vehicle break-ins, and theft.

The crime rate has surged across the state, especially in retail stores.

Under the supervision of Newsom and other liberal figures major retailers like Whole Foods, T-Mobile, and Nordstrom have left San Francisco.

In addition to crime and homelessness, the economy, taxes and cost of living have forced Californians to depart the state in record numbers. Since 2010, California has lost a total of 1.9 million people who have chosen to flee the state.
