

Military-Hating Kamala Wants To Shut Down The VA

By Harry Helmet

What group of people in America hates our military and isn't afraid to show it? Democrats. Obama devastated our military, providing virtually no funding to it for eight long years.

He cut our troop size in half, sold off equipment, and often refused to even provide paychecks. They didn't even have ammunition.

Obama was equally unkind to veterans. The Veteran's Affairs office had its budget cut in half during his terrible reign. Those who had previously served us were made to feel worthless and unwanted.

Fortunately, President Trump was elected, and in just three short years he successfully reversed the damage from the previous administration, damage that many had thought would never be recovered from.

Now, Kamala Harris wants to take our vets back to the hell they had experienced under BHO. That was somewhat to be expected, but no details have yet been given except for one very significant one announced by Kamala Harris today.

Harris made an announcement before some group in Chicago:

“The United States government cannot continue to pay for the every need of what has become a special class of citizen. Veterans are equal to us, not better than. Veterans Affairs coddles them. It creates a dependency upon us which is not doing these former soldiers any good. They need to learn to live on their own two feet and be responsible adults.

The easiest way to assist them on this journey is to cut them off. Within these next four years, we will be shuttering the VA, taking away soldier welfare. The money saved will go to better use in assisting refugee families. These poor folks seek asylum with us and need a boost and it is our responsibility as a nation to provide it.

So here's a message to the soldier boys. Get a job.”

This woman has a lot of nerve speaking to our brave military personnel in that way. These men and women sacrificed themselves for this country. Harris has never even come close to doing such a thing.
