

From The Republican Party of Virginia – Executive Director

Friend,

I said what I said.

As you may have seen, a reporter wrote that I told members of our Victory team that if they did not perform, they would be fired. Let me be perfectly clear: I am 100 percent serious. This election is too important to accept anything less than results.

The liberal media is so desperate to protect Abigail and her Democrat allies that they are now attacking me for expecting greatness out of our team. They want to paint accountability as cruelty because they know the truth: if Republicans win, their entire agenda collapses.

When the Chairman put his trust in me to lead RPV, I promised that every dollar coming in would be spent wisely and only on one thing: winning Republican victories this November. I refuse to be an Executive Director who coasts along. I will never accept mediocrity when so much is at stake.

If Democrats take power, Virginians will pay the price. They will raise taxes, cripple small businesses with radical regulations, push their dangerous gender ideology into our schools, defund law enforcement, and turn our communities into laboratories for the far left. They will undo every safeguard we have fought to put in place.

That cannot happen. Not on my watch.

I will continue to push until every job in our Victory effort is done and done well. If you do not perform in your job, you get fired. That is how the real world works, and it is how we must operate if we want to win.

We are not backing down. With your help, we will stand strong, hold our team accountable, and deliver Republican victories this November.

Please consider making a generous contribution today. Every dollar will go directly to ensuring we win this fight.
