

Serious note--sounds like Pres Trump in the early hours at Walter Reed got an infusion of an "anti-body cocktail" that the doctors predict that a single dose will make him well and last for months as a protection.

And after a few days of observation they'll know if it worked. The public may see this as a courageous play by the President and the doctors resulting in public confidence of a cure if they become infected. Voters may want to thank President Trump with their votes for "taking one for the team!"
