

Governor approves extra school funds

Gov. Glenn Youngkin approved the larger school funding budget passed by the General Assembly, which should close a big chunk of the funding gap at local schools.

Williamsburg-James City County Schools spokesperson Kara Walls said officials were still awaiting final confirmation that they would be receiving an extra $1.9 million.

But even with the additional money, she said, the schools would be $815,000 short of the money they seek for their $195.2 million budget.

Will it ever be enough??
