

Friend,

This week is National School Choice Week. As a father, grandfather, and husband of a retired schoolteacher, I know just how important of a role parents play in their children's education.

Unfortunately, the past two years of one-party Democrat rule in Washington has hurt our schools and our children. Teachers unions and the Biden administration have put politics ahead of quality education and have dismissed parents' roles in their children's education. Now, overall confidence in our nation's public schools is at just 28%.

House Republicans are committed to lifting up the voices of parents and making sure they have the transparency and influence they deserve in their own children's education. By advancing the Parents Bill of Rights, we can ensure:

- Parents will know what their children are being taught;
- Parents will be heard;
- Parents will see the school budget and spending;
- Parents will be able to protect their child's privacy;
- Parents will be able to keep their children safe; and
- Recover lost learning from school closures.

Parents should never be made to feel powerless, especially when it comes to their children's education. Instead, they should be empowered and be kept in the loop on what is occurring in their local schools. By expanding parental choice and involvement in our schools, students will have more opportunities to receive the quality education they need and deserve. I look forward to working with my Republican colleagues to support parents' rights and restore accountability in our schools.

Sincerely,
Rob
